Died at his residence in Hartford last Wednesday morning of a complication of diseases, Mrs. Sallie M. Bell, wife of Mr. A. J. Bell. Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock after which her remains were entombed in Oakwood cemetery. Mrs. Bell, who had been sick for some time, was a devoted Christian church for many years before a husband, five children and a host of friends and relatives.

We are indebted to Mr. O. J. Thomas for a valuable and highly appreciated addition to our museum, which consisted in a sword and cutthroat holsters which he found in the garret of his large brick store on Market street yesterday. The sword, which had evidently been used in a battle, was well preserved and as bright as a new silver blade. The only blemish on it was a small hole in the blade, which was the result of the sword being used in the cutting of the regulation order, in a perfect state of preservation.

Last week the Hartford Republican published a list of appointments for Hon. C. M. Barnett to speak at different points in the county, and the Courier-Journal, in its great desire to aid the Republican party, publishes the list, giving the places and not the county names. The only blemish on it was a small hole in the blade, which was the result of the sword being used in the cutting of the regulation order, in a perfect state of preservation.

Where Earthquakes Abound.

There is a place in California where earthquakes may be said to be kept on tap, said a Fresno county fruit grower to a reporter. "The spot is at the headwaters of the Kowich, at the border of Fresno, Tulare and Inyo counties. You can't hire an Indian or a Mexican to go near that locality. They say it is the home of the evil spirits. The country is rocky and the rocks themselves seem to be grinding and grinding against one another constantly, as if not just by the internal force. These phenomena are said to be more apparent at night than in the daytime. Frequent lightning and thunder, apparently deep in the earth, are heard, and men who have heard both say that all sorts of hideous noises and sounds seem to be made by the neighborhood their parish, for they are there in very palpable abundance."

"But in addition to these attractions the region may be said to be in a state of perpetual earthquake. The ground trembles and quakes continually and the rocks themselves seem to be grinding and grinding against one another constantly, as if not just by the internal force. These phenomena are said to be more apparent at night than in the daytime. Frequent lightning and thunder, apparently deep in the earth, are heard, and men who have heard both say that all sorts of hideous noises and sounds seem to be made by the neighborhood their parish, for they are there in very palpable abundance."

Gum Shoes for Horses.

Horses whose owners are rich enough may wear rubber-tired shoes. The extra shoe is about three times as thick as the ordinary steel or iron shoe, but it is not heavy, as a large portion of it is hollowed out to form a groove in which to set the rubber tire. The tire is made of very hard rubber and is about half an inch thick. The inner circumference of the shoe is fitted with fine prongs, which are turned into the rubber and serve to hold it in place. The great drawback to the shoe is that the holes for the nails are so near the edge that in many cases it is impossible to nail the shoe on to the horse's hoofs. When the prongs are turned into place the rubber shoes about an eighth of an inch over the shoe, and it wears away new rubber can be substituted, or the old tire allowed to remain. In either case it may have been found by usage that the shoe will wear as long as the old shoe.

Daniel Boone's Gun.

"Uncle Matt" Russell, of Millerville, Ky., has an old duck rifle that belonged to Daniel Boone when he came to Kentucky in 1775. It was bought by him from William Wrecker, one of Boone's men, who settled near Campbellsville. That was exactly fifty years ago. The barrel measured the feet one inch, and the entire gun was just two feet long. It was with this gun that Boone helped to kill the first of the whooping who were caught in the mountains of Kentucky while the pioneers went back to Virginia for more ammunition and supplies. When they returned many months later they found that the Indians had been there before them and stolen and destroyed their gun and tire of skin. One of the party carved on a tree near this location a record of their mission, and the deerkins told, "Brimstone, by God." Russell says the old gun shoots so true that when he tries to hit a target or squirrel, the gun invariably does it to either within he wants it to or not.

because he makes a few more pennies on it, the ingredients of which even he does not know.
